MISSION

Greater Than Rubies was hatched in 2013 to provide resources and experiences that will empower young ladies to live their most successful lives for Christ.

What does that mean?

The foundation of all our activities is seeking the will of God first, and then working to build the mindset and skill set to achieve success on earth—only to the glory of God.

How do we do that?

By teaching, training and developing resources that will empower girls ages 14-20 to figure out who they are in Christ, their unique gifts and talents and how to employ them in the

VISION

My vision is that in the next 3 years, Greater Than Rubies will have trained 500 girls through the online program, with 30 to 50 of them becoming peer mentors in their home cities. I want at least 10 of those mentors to be in rural US counties.

My long term plans include developing a traveling summer camp program, annual mission-cations (mission trips with fun stuff too), a Rubies “pressure pit” ministry incubator, an internship program, a podcast featuring amazing Christian women and eventually an event & training center.

GIVING AT LEAST 20% BACK

My main goal in starting Greater Than Rubies was to support the girls closest to me and work my way out in an ever-increasing circle of influence. That said, there are some particularly great needs that I want to attend to NOW by donating 20% of all my profits to causes that improve the lives of girls around the world. I’m particularly supportive of anti-human trafficking orgs like oasis.org, and I’m also into sending girls to school, equipping women with business tools, and pretty much anything else I find in the ADRA or World Vision catalogues. This project helps me to be able to give more to those causes.

BIO

Amie spent her public high school years defending her faith and her vegetarianism in rural Arkansas. After getting a degree in Corporate Communication she proceeded to get jobs in everything but communications: including but not limited to modeling, sales, crisis hotlines, fitness and economic development. Looking back, she realizes that her favorite jobs (Union College Resident Assistant, Assistant Girl’s Dean, and Youth Leadership Coordinator) have all had to do with helping young women figure out life’s tough stuff.

Amie now works on Greater Than Rubies stuff from a cozy little home office with the help of her fuzzy friends. She loves Jesus, books about theology, painting stuff, eating stuff and being warm. She loves her family, including two boys she fostered in 2011/2012.
